

Eyes to See: An Anti-Racism

ASSOCIATION of
JESUIT COLLEGES
& UNIVERSITIES
AJCU

Examen for Jesuit Colleges & Universities

Designed by the Association of Jesuit Colleges and Universities (AJCU) in collaboration with colleagues across member institutions, the Anti-Racism Examen focuses on matters of race and racism that are specific to us and our institution.

Participants had the opportunity to engage in guided conversations and strategic collaborations that build reflective practices, helping participants to make choices and act in ways that strengthen our commitment to an antiracist working and learning environment at Boston College. Designed as a 2-part series, faculty and staff at BC from a variety of different departments, units and schools participated in the Spring/Fall 2021 Examen.

If your department or team is interested in this program or would like additional information, please contact Burt Howell (howellbu@bc.edu) or Patricia Lowe (patricia.lowe@bc.edu)

Examen - Examination of Consciousness - a practice used by Jesuits and their colleagues for helping us to make choices and act in ways that better the world

Hosted by Intersections and the Office for Institutional Diversity

“Racism is a soul sickness. Racism is that interior disease: that warping of the human spirit that enables us to create communities where some matter and some do not. We must begin by looking at racism because racism is our most central justice challenge.” - Rev. Bryan Massingale